Public background

Freedom's public education describes NeurOptimal as a brain-training tool for general wellness. It is not presented here as a diagnostic or medical-treatment resource.

Journalists and community partners can use the background resources linked on the media page. They cover practical choices such as rental logistics, in-office versus at-home setup, and questions to ask before selecting a provider.

Useful public resources

- Wearable device versus full system buyer guide
- Questions to ask before renting a neurofeedback system
- In-office sessions versus an at-home rental

General wellness note: Nothing in this fact sheet diagnoses, treats, mitigates, prevents, or cures a disease or condition. Questions about medical care should be directed to a qualified healthcare professional.
